

Power Quality Seminar will be held in Dalian by EU-Asia Power Quality Initiative China Alliance

As we all know, due to the reform and structure changes in the Chinese power industry, the focus now is on the power quality in the power system. More and more power generation, distribution, end user, consumer, equipment manufacture and utilities are paying more attention to power quality and are eager to solve the problem. APQI (EU-Asia Power Quality Initiative China Alliance) is sponsored by the International Copper Association Ltd. China, a non-profit organization and contributes to set up platforms to promote the advanced technology and application of power quality in order to enhance its awareness nationwide.

The alliance has held more than 20 training programs in different cities in China which all got good results since 2006. This year we already have held 3 training programs and next one will be held in Dalian which is a beautiful harbor city. We appreciate your participation.

The training program is free of charge and also will provide participants a delicious lunch and a gift. You will get a big surprise if you are a lucky guy.

The volunteers can be registered through aline.han@diamonding.cn.

Welcome to Dalian!
